

Fly up high over the Arctic Circle for a couple of days' whale spotting, a taste of the picturesque Lofoten Islands and hopefully the Northern Lights overhead. In the adjacent Vestfjorden are the winter feeding grounds of literally hundreds of Orcas, over flown by herring gulls and sea eagles whilst onshore are some of the finest fish restaurants in the world

Marine biologists remain baffled as to why the North Atlantic herring originally began their migration here but migrate they do, in literally their thousands followed by the Orca between October and January. Our tour bases you in Svolvær in the heart of the island's fishing community so as to enjoy some of the best fish you'll ever eat; savour the unique Lofoten charm and whale spot by day.

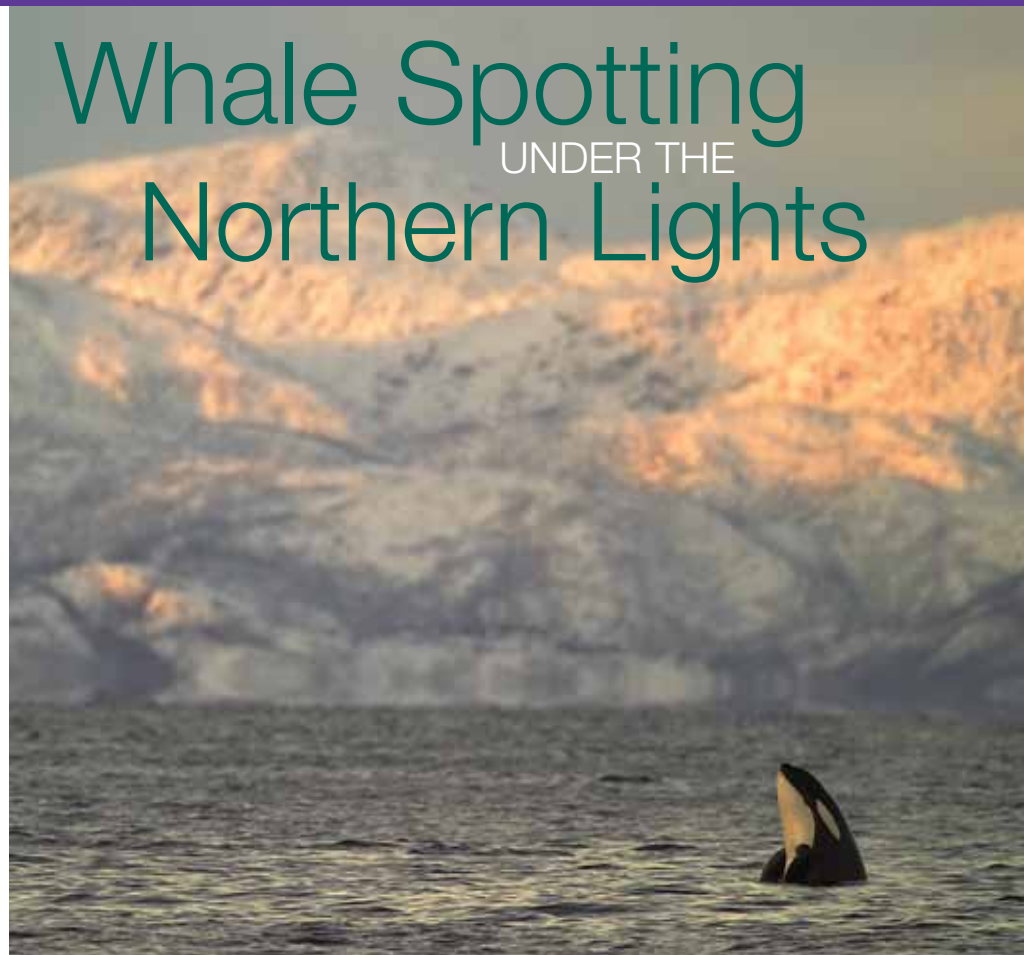

SVINOYA RORBUER AA1901

Originally fisherman's huts, Svinoya's collection of 30 or so 'Rorbu' cabins have been painstakingly restored, or rebuilt using reclaimed timber, to provide some really 'atmospheric' accommodation at the water's edge in the heart of Svolvær's fishing community. Each cabin has beds for up to 6 and a modern bathroom with private WC/shower. Nearby, one of the old warehouses has been similarly renovated and now hosts a lovely little restaurant turning out home cooked traditional fish dishes.

VESTFJORD HOTELL AA1902

Right on the waterfront, the hotel's rooms are larger than average and have either a mountain or ocean view. Recently upgraded and refurbished in a modern Scandinavian style with echoes of traditionalism demonstrated by the use of wood and cantilevered ceilings, all rooms have private WC/shower, radio & TV. The whale spotting safari ship leaves from the quayside adjacent to the hotel.
